Zimmerman Honored for 38 Years of Service to State of Iowa

Steve Zimmerman, who served for the past several years as the chief of staff with the Iowa Homeland Security and Emergency Management Division (HSEMD), retired on March 30 after working for the state of Iowa for 38 years.

A celebration to honor Zimmerman's service to Iowa and HSEMD was held March 28 at Camp Dodge.

Above, HSEMD's Readiness and Response Bureau Chief Joyce Flinn presents Zimmerman with a plaque recognizing him for his service to the Iowa Homeland Security and Emergency Management Division. Ω

Bills Move to Governor as Legislature Winds Down

The Iowa General Assembly is starting to make strides on finishing up their business and heading home for the fall elections. This past week one of the indicators that the end is approaching arrived in the House, the Standings Appropriation bill, HSB 674.

There are several items of interest as things wind down. First, the Iowa Emergency Management Association's bill SF 413, passed out of the House with an amendment and the Senate concurred. The bill now moves to the Governor for his signature. The Flood Mitigation Program bill, SF 2217, has received approval from the Senate and House and now moves to the Governor for his signature.

The 911 bill, SF 2272, remains a live round in the Senate with discussions focusing on whether a surcharge increase is the way to generate more funds for the local level or making changes to how the existing revenue stream is distributed is the correct course of action. There has also been much discussion on eliminating the Statewide E911 Council and shifting their duties to the State Interoperability Board. Finally, all the budget bills for the year are alive as the House and Senate have not yet reached agreement on what the State's budget will look like for the next fiscal year.

Leadership in both chambers remains optimistic that they will adjourn by April 17. However, as with all things in the legislature, only time will tell. Ω

Importance of Youth Preparedness Focus of Recent Workshop

Youth preparedness was the topic of a recent workshop hosted by FEMA in Kansas City.

"It's so important to develop young people and provide them training in disaster preparedness and response," said HSEMD's Blake DeRouchey, Citizen Corps project officer, who attended the workshop. "If you can get into schools or in after-school programs, not only do you start developing kids for a lifetime of preparedness, you get into that child's household and help educate the entire family. When more and more families have an awareness of what to do to prepare, our job as emergency managers becomes just a little bit easier," DeRouchey said.

Attendees at the workshop, which was hosted by FEMA's Individual and Community Preparedness Division along with FEMA Region VII, were presented with a broad range of youth programs focused on increasing preparedness and participation in disaster response.

At the workshop, attendees were split up and worked on projects such as establishing a budget, identifying financial and non-financial resources, possible pitfalls, evaluating and fundraising and developing a promotional plan.

Teen CERT is an ever popular program in schools and FEMA will be posting the first ever Teen CERT curriculum online soon.

HSEMD Holds CERT Train-the-Trainer Course

HSEMD held a CERT (Community Emergency Response Team) Train-the-Trainer course March 29-30 at the State Emergency Operations Center in Johnston.

Nine individuals from around the state participated in the course and became certified CERT Team instructors. The course, instructed by Clair Franzen, was the first using FEMA's updated CERT Train-the-Trainer curriculum that was officially released late in 2011. Course attendees also participated in a conference call with Rachel Jacky, CERT Coordinator from FEMA Headquarters, to learn more about the CERT supplemental training material and future initiatives with the program.

There have been initial discussions about having a second CERT Train-the-Trainer Course later in 2012, at a location yet to be determined, but somewhere other than the Des Moines area.

The CERT program trains people in neighborhoods, the workplace and schools in basic disaster response skills. CERT members may become an important part of a community's emergency response in the aftermath of a disaster when emergency services may not be immediately available to every neighborhood.

If you are interested in participating in the next course, or for more information about CERT, please contact HSEMD's Blake DeRouchey at 515-323-4232 or blake.derouchey@iowa.gov. Ω

Application Period Opens for FY 2011 Fire Prevention and Safety Grants

Online applications are now being accepted for the FY 2011 Fire Prevention and Safety (FP&S) grants. FP&S grants support projects that enhance the safety of the public and firefighters from fire and related hazards. They are part of the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Assistance to Firefighters Grants.

For information on how to apply, visit the FP&S grants web page at www.fema.gov/firegrants. Ω

Future of Citizen Corps Funding

Most everyone has noticed that Citizen Corps as a specific line item was not included in the 2012 Homeland Security Grant Program. It is now on equal footing with the various other programs funded from HSGP. However, with FEMA's increasing focus on "Whole Communities," there is no doubt Citizen Corps will continue its mission.

Blake DeRouchey, HSEMD's Citizen Corps project officer, said it has been stated all the way from the top of FEMA and Administrator Fugate that Citizen Corps is not going away. FEMA's Grants Program Directorate Information Bulletin 381 further spells out how Citizen Corps activities are still encouraged under the 2012 HSGP.

For more information about future funding or questions about the future of the program, please contact Blake DeRouchey at 515-323-4232 or blake.derouchey@iowa.org. Ω
